In addition to the activities of banking, insurance and asset management (in collaboration with the daughters, Daughters, KBC Insurance NV and KBC Asset Management NV). KBC participates actively, among other things, in the European markets of debt capital, the national cash markets and in the field of corporate banking, private banking, leasing, factoring, reinsurance, private equity and project financing and trade in BA © Lgica, Central and Eastern Europe and in other places (main). KBC is an acronym for Kredietbank ABB Insurance Cera Bank (Centrale Raiffeisenkas). The parent company, KBC Group n.v., is one of the main companies and the second largest bancassurance of Belgium. It is the 15th largest bank in Europe by market capitalization [2] and a major financial player in Central and Eastern Europe, employing about 41,000 employees (of which more than half in Central and Eastern Europe) and Serving 12 million customers around the world [1] (about 7 to 8 million in Central and Eastern Europe). KBC is a Forbes Global 2000 company. [3] The group is controlled by a central shareholder union, and has a free float approximately 60%. In the central shareholders, KBC Ancora controls 19%, MRBB (part of the Flemish farmers "Controls around 12%, CERA (the largest cooperative in Flanders) 3% and a group of industrialist families controls another 8%. [1] The free float was mainly held by a wide range of international institutional investors in mid-2018. Its shares are traded at the Euronext exchange in Brussels. The Group's overall ambition is to be the benchmark in banking insurance in all its main markets. KBC's private art collection is located in the ROCKOX House in Antwerp. HISTORY Volksbank Catholic Van Lovaven, founded in 1889, was one of the first predecessors of KBC Bank. Another predecessor was the Bremer Vorschußverein, founded in 1889 and later changed to Bankverein Bremen AG. In 1935, Algenoe BankverEniging and Volksbank Van Leuven merged with Voor Handel Bank in Nijverheid to create KredietBank. The KredietBank would be the only Belgian financial institution under Flemish control to survive the financial crisis of the Great Depression of the 1930s. Fernand Collin, who became president in 1938, devised the business strategy that would lead to the bank's growth. He defined the KredietBank as an independent bank with a decidedly Flemish character that would be an instrument to follow the Flemish economic growth. During the Second World War, the Bank could expand its activities and increase its deposits of the Flemish middle class. After the war, due to the economic recovery, the KredietBank, now the third largest bank in Belgium, was able to increase the number of operating branches in Flanders. The Bank's post-war growth strategy emphasized foreign expansion and the development of portfolio management services for investors. The Bank expanded to Luxembourg in 1949 with the KredietBank S.A.A. Luxembourgise and to Wallonia with the establishment of the G.A. © N.A. © Ral de Belgique in 1961. The It also expanded into the Belgian Congo. He established a branch in LA © Opolville in 1952. Then, in 1954, 1954, Banque Congolaise pour l'Industrie, le Commerce, et l'Agriculture and renamed Kredietbank-Congo.[4] Ultimately it held four branches, one in Leopoldville, Bukavu, Elizabethville and Stanleyville. Due to the situation that emerged after the independence of the Belgian Congo in 1960, the bank suspended its Congolese operations in 1966. In the sixties, driven by increased competition, the bank worked on expanding its network of branches and improving consumer services. In 1966, the bank began building a network of foreign correspondents and establishing foreign branches in several countries. In 1970, together with six other European institutions, Kredietbank established the Inter-Alpha Group of Banks. Kredietbank N.V. Bruxelles acquired the majority shareholding in Bankverein Bremen AG since 1982. The Bremen branch was renamed Kredietbank-Bankverein AG in 1990. [5] In 1998, Kredietbank merged with two financial institutions originating from Boerenbond (Vlaanderen) [nl] (E: Asociación CatÁ3n Agricultores Belga), ABB-insurance (Assurances du Boerenbond Belge) and CERA (Centrale Raiffeisenkas) Bank, to form the "KBC Bank and Insurance Holding Company". Since then, the group has significantly expanded its activities, mainly in Central and Eastern Europe. In 2005, KBC set another milestone by merging with its parent company, Almani, and changing its name to KBC Groep NV [nl]. Over the past two decades, KBC has built a strong presence in many of the countries that joined the EU on May 1, 2004. Most recently (2007), KBC made acquisitions in Bulgaria (DZI Insurance, DZI Invest and EIBANK), Romania (KBC Securities Romania, Romstal Leasing and INK Insurance Broker), Russia (Absolut Bank), Serbia (KBC Banka and Senzal, which became KBC Securities AD Beograd, Hipobroker, which became 3 at KBC Broker, and Bastion, which became Corporate Finance). In 2017, KBC UBB e Interlease en en During the financial crisis of the end of the year 2000, the price of the shares fell from more than 100 EUR to 5.5 EUR and the Bank needed and received the support of the flamenco government for an amount of several billions of euros. After the crisis, the Bank initiated a deafening program to meet the requirements of the European Commission. As such, he sold several subsidiaries, including Centa, Fidea, Kredyt Bank, ADB, KBC Deutschland, Absolut Bank and KBL EPB (Krediet Bank Luxembourgise), its network of European private banking subsidiaries. The immersion program was completed in 2014 and state aid paid an entirety for 2015, five years before the agreed calendar. Since then, the price of the quota was recovered around a maximum of 86 EUR in November 2021. The group now focuses on its six main countries: Belgium, Slovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Ireland. [6] In December 2016, KBC announced that it would acquire United Bulgarian Bank, making KBC the world's largest banking assurance group. In February 2017, Ireland was defined as a new Basic KBC Group market. In April 2021, the KBC began conversations with Bank of Ireland to sell his book from PrÁ © Stamos and announced his intention to retire from Ireland. [7] KBC carbon investment has been criticized by its investment policies on fossil fuels. According to a 2015 report of the Belgian NGO Fairfin KBC invested [8] US $ 2.4 billion between 2004 and 2014 through PrÁ © STAMS and issuance of actions and obligations. On the other hand, the money assigned to renewable energy was only 929 million dollars. When KBC revised its Sustainability Policy in 2016, [9] the global network of non-governmental organizations cooperating in the field of private banks and sustainability, Banktrack published an analysis that recognizes the progress made in fossil fuel, criticizing the exception for the Czech Republic, where the bank continues to finance saying á € øThe new general restriction of carbon is welcome and positive, positive. The exception applied to Czech carbon companies is relative. "In 2017, the Belgian Climate Coalition published a report [11] in which investments were drawn into Fuel Fuels of the four main Banks of BA © Lgica (KBC, ING, DNP Paribas and Belfius). This report also attacked the exception for the Czech Republic, saying that á € øThe exceptions for carbon activities in the Czech Republic do not comply with the strict deadlines for climate science. €.
