This patch is packed with improvements aimed at smoothing out day-to-day gameplay and introduces fresh changes to the meta. You'll be able to enable "autorun" from the action wheel, and holding H while wearing armor will show the durability of each equipped piece. ASA's community has been requesting some long-standing QoL updates, and we're making good on them! Stay tuned for more details! Looking forward to selecting a specific resource type while harvesting - whether it's metal or other resources. Anky and Doedic will also keep auto-harvesting past the current weight limit even if the player is flying to make life easier for solo farmers. On the downside, some updates are coming that should help smooth out certain areas while introducing more variety. For example, Mek blueprints can be tinkered with again, which adds flexibility without opening up too many options. The Tesla Turret stun has been adjusted, and poison damage has been reduced. The HP on the Dreadnoughts has also been tuned down, and there are some tweaks to other creatures like Quetzals and Spinosaurus. Additionally, the Phoenix will soon be breedable - a feature that's been requested for a long time. We're excited to see what kind of fire-fueled bloodlines players start hatching! These updates are just a few highlights from a much larger list of changes and improvements we've got planned. We also want to let you know about some new custom content that will be available soon, including new maps, creatures, items, and game modes. You'll be able to download these through our new Mod-browser directly within the game. This is going to open up an endless stream of new ARK content as the community's creativity and talent are unleashed across gaming platforms. The new Windows 10 version of ARK: Survival Evolved brings single player and non-dedicated split-screen to PC, and hosting a 70-player dedicated server. You will not be able to edit the "game.ini" or "gameusersettings.ini" server files, as those are locked behind the Windows 10 platform, though, you still have the Host Settings user interface available to you. To host a dedicated server on Windows 10 while simultaneously playing on Xbox, users need an additional account with a copy of the game. Edit: Microsoft informed us about a potential way to host and play on a server without needing an additional copy, but we're yet to confirm as we're looking into cross-platform player dedicated invites with them. To set up a dedicated server on your PC... 1. Launch and sign into the Microsoft Store using your Xbox Live Gold account 2. Download and install ARK 3. Launch the Xbox App and sign-in (or create as needed) an Xbox Live Silver account 4. Launch ARK 5. In ARK, set up your dedicated server To connect to a dedicated instance on your Xbox One... 1. Login to your Gold account 2. Download and install ARK 3. Launch ARK using Gold account as identity 4. Use Server Browser to find and connect to the dedicated instance you set up on your PC Mods will not be available through the Windows 10 version of the game, due to the current lack of a User Generated Content storage and cloud delivery pipeline equivalent to Steam Workshop. The Non-Dedicated tether range has been increased by 50% for the Windows 10 version of the game. However, as we enter the new year, we'll be removing the limit altogether in single player split-screen, and a slider will be made available for Windows non-dedicated sessions. In addition to the upcoming tether changes, we'll be working on bringing Truesky entirely to the Windows 10 version of the game. Welcome to the big ARK Tribe, Windows 10 Survivors! We've loved seeing Survivors dive into the Summer Bash event and explore the big Quality of Life update! Your feedback's been rolling in, and we're already taking notes for what's next. Also, keep an eye out as our next Mod Spotlight, showcasing the talents and creations of the modding community, drops in the coming days! Psst... we heard you miss the poker table. This mod's got your back, no bluffing! Something stalks the shadows... You'll hear it... too late. The rustle in the brush. The breath behind you. The sudden stillness in the dark. Arriving with Valguero later this year, Megaraptor is not a monster of brute strength. It doesn't need to be. It waits, isolates. And when you're alone, it strikes with unnerving precision, especially when no one is around to help you. Its presence clouds vision and reason alike, disorienting its victims just long enough to finish the job. It's not coming for the apex. It's coming for you... when you're alone, wounded, and thinking the nightmare is finally over. Download in full resolution Sun's out, dinos out!
