We want to help people learn globally. Educators don't do students' homework. We make video tutorials for the future. Dr. Mei Lin Chen says that textbook solutions can help with tough problems, time constraints, and understanding professor material. Here's what you need to know about textbook solutions, plus 11 places to find them now. Check out our Ultimate Homework Help Guide for more help. Textbook Solution Do's and Don'ts Websites, apps, and manuals offer step-by-step explanations for specific books. Use these resources wisely. Follow guidelines: treat them as learning tools, not cheating aids; try solving problems first; ask your school about policies. Even if you don't intend to cheat, you may still find yourself seeking homework help. The only drawback is that solution manuals might not always be publicly available since publishers often release them exclusively to schools. However, there are ways to access these resources. Our site is a good starting point: simply search for your book by title and "solution manual" (e.g., "chemistry a molecular approach solution manual"). Solution manuals can cost anywhere from under $5 to over $50, depending on the textbook, bookstore, and edition. You can get the best price using our free service, which instantly compares prices from top bookstores to help you save money. Some popular resources for finding homework help include Chegg Study, Brainly, Quizlet, and Vaia (formerly StudySmarter).
