Laure GASPARTO and Bruno QUENIOUX authored works such as Florence Delaporte's "L'Ire des Marges Mangeuses" and Lauren Malka's "Les Pérégrines Gabin à table", featuring contributions from Alexis Moncorgé, Yves Camdeborde, Michel Lafon, Pierre-Yves Quiviger, and Patrick Rambourg. Antoine Blondin's award honored original works on sports, with Claude Hugot presiding over the committee. Meanwhile, Charles Aubert received recognition for "Danser encore", alongside Vincent Bierce's "Balzac footballeur" and Étienne Bonamy's "Les forcés de la route". Other notable authors include Thierry Grillet's "Petit traité du geste" and Virginie Troussier's "L'homme qui vivait haut". The Claude Chabrol award was given to Dominique Besnehard, Tonino Benacquista, and others for their adaptations of novels into film scripts. Works such as Cécile Cabanac's "À pleurer tout nous condamne", Amélie Cordonnier's "En garde", Denis Michelis' "Amour fou", Hervé Paolini's "La mort porte conseil", and Frédéric Viguier's "La vérité n'aura pas lieu" were also recognized. The organizers extended gratitude to their volunteers for their dedication, good humor, endurance, kindness, and professionalism.
