Complex Sentences

A complex sentence consists of one independent clause and at least one dependent clause. A subordinating conjunction such as after, if, or when connects the two clauses into one sentence.

Example:
 The senators left the capital after the session was adjourned.
 A dependent clause that begins a sentence is usually followed by a comma. If the clause ends the sentence, it usually is not preceded by a comma.

Examples:
 Because someone was careless with matches, a fire started at the Johnson's home.
 A fire started at the Johnson's home because someone was careless with matches.
 When a dependent clause comes in the middle of a sentence, it is usually set off by commas.

Example:
 The fire, which we saw spreading rapidly, shot sparks into the sky.

DIRECTIONS Underline the dependent clause in each sentence.

- When Lena's family made vacation plans, they chose San Francisco as their destination.
- Because the Harrisons lived in Texas, they traveled by plane.
- Before the plane landed, the pilot pointed out the Golden Gate Bridge.
- Mrs. Harrison's parents have lived in San Francisco since they retired.
- The ride took them to the top of Russian Hill, where they had a great view.

DIRECTIONS Combine the two sentences into one complex sentence, using proper punctuation to connect the ideas.

- The Spanish founded San Francisco in 1776. They built a mission and a fort.
- The California Gold Rush began in 1848. San Francisco grew rapidly.
- The great earthquake and fire of 1906 destroyed much of San Francisco. The city was quickly rebuilt.
- Foggy weather is common in June and July. Most people don't mind it.
- Many visitors return to San Francisco. It is one of the most beautiful cities in America.

Compound and complex sentences worksheet year 6. Simple compound and complex sentences worksheet year 6.

Expressing Time There are a number of subordinating conjunctions that express time. He bought the car. Dean sometimes goes to the cinema. There is an important presentation next week. I usually work out at the gym early in the morning. although / even though / though Although I felt he was wrong, I decided to trust him. Sharon started looking for a new job even though she was currently employed. Though I couldn't understand a word, we had a great time! Showing Cause and Effect To give reasons use these conjunctions that keep the same meaning. He just wants to know what his wife thinks. Cindy and David had breakfast. I put the chairs on the patio in the garage when we have rain. There are other variations that are possible than those provided in the answers. Ask your teacher for other ways to connect these to write complex sentences. We went for a walk. Jenny needs to ask me. You will find it tomorrow. Marvin thinks he will buy the house. It allows me to watch what I want when I want. Sometimes it happens that we have a lot of rain. Doug visits once a month. I prefer to watch TV by streaming over the internet. They can stand alone and function as a sentence: We didn't pass the test. Angela won the competition. The music was too loud. Alexander has been working sixty hours a week. Dependent clauses, however, need to be used together with an independent clause. He is preparing for job interviews. I'm writing a letter, and I'm leaving. Provide a fitting subordinator to fill the gaps in these sentences. I'm going to the bank. I need some money. I made lunch. I got home. It's raining, she's going for a walk in the park. She finishes her homework soon, she will fail the class. He decided to trust Tim. He was an honest man. We went to school, she decided to investigate the situation. Jennifer decided to leave Tom. He was too worried about his job. Dennis bought a new jacket. He had received one as a gift last week. Brandley claims that there will be trouble. He doesn't complete the job. Janice will have finished the report. The time you receive the letter. Henry needs to learn English. I leave for work at eight a.m. The car was extremely expensive. Complex sentences are made up of two clauses—an independent clause and a dependent clause. Notice how they seem incomplete: Although he is ready. When it is done. Independent clauses are combined with dependent clauses to make sense. We'll go to the bank because we need some money. As soon as we land, I'll give you a call. Notice that dependent clauses can come first. Note that the simple tense (present simple or past simple) is generally used in dependent clauses beginning with time subordinators. when / as soon as / before / after / by By the time you get this letter, I will have left for New York. I used to play a lot of tennis when I was a teenager. We had a wonderful dinner after she had arrived. I will teach him. It was raining outside. He enjoys going with his friend Doug. Answers because / since / as after / when / as soon as although / even though / though unless because / since / as before / when because / since / as although / even though / though unless because / since / as before / when because / since / as although / even though / though if / in the case that by Use subordinating conjunctions (though, if, when, because, etc.) to connect the sentences into one complex sentence. I will buy it for her. Yvonne played golf extremely well. Independent clauses are similar to simple sentences. In this case, we use a comma. Before she comes, we'll eat some lunch. Because he's late for work, he took a taxi. Complex sentences are written by using subordinating conjunctions to connect the two clauses. Here are some dependent clauses with independent clauses. Expressing Conditions Use these subordinators to express that something depends on a condition. She was very young. Franklin wants to get a new job. They left for work. I really enjoyed the concert. Bob didn't have much money. because / since / as Since you need some help, I'll come over this afternoon. Henry felt he needed to take some time off because he had been working so hard. The parents paid for extra lessons as the children were very gifted. if / unless / in the case that If I were you, I would take my time with that project. They won't come next week unless you ask them to do so. In the case that he isn't available, we'll look for another consultant. As Henry needs to learn English, I will teach him. We went for a walk even though it was raining. If Jenny asks me, I will buy it for her. Yvonne played golf extremely well when she was young. Because Franklin wants to get a new job, he is preparing for job interviews. I'm writing you this letter which you will find after I leave. Unless his wife doesn't like the house, Marvin will buy it. After Cindy and David had eaten breakfast, they left for work. I really enjoyed the concert although the music was too loud. As Alexander has an important presentation next week, he has been working sixty hours a week. I usually work out at the gym before I leave for work at eight. Though Bob didn't have much money, he bought the extremely expensive car. If Doug visits, they go to the cinema. Since it allows me to watch what I want when I want, I prefer to watch TV by streaming over the internet. If it rains a lot, I put the chairs on the patio in the garage. Showing Opposition or Unexpected Results Use these three subordinating conjunctions to show that there is a pro and con or to contrast statements.
